

Pavlov's House (Stalingrad)

by Scott Roberts

Pavlov's House was the name of a fortified apartment building defended by Sergeant Yakov Pavlov during the Battle of Stalingrad in 1942-1943. Even though it was only held by 12-25 men at a time, it never fell to the repeated German assaults. The small Soviet garrison surrounded the building with barbed wire and minefields, and established anti-tank and machine-gun posts at the windows. It still stands as a symbol of courage to this day. The Soviet officer figure represents Sgt. Pavlov.

OBJECTIVE:

The Germans win if any German

Squad is present in any hex that is part of Pavlov's House (the large building in 9A) at the end of any round.
